Linda Ginac Named Woman of the Year in Business/Enterprise

[Austin, TX] – October 9, 2007 - Linda Ginac, CEO and founder of The Ginac Group was named woman of the year in business for 2007 by the Young Women’s Christian Alliance of Greater Austin.

The 13th Annual Women of the Year Awards Gala was held on October 5, 2007 at the University of Texas at Austin Alumni Center to celebrate 100 years of service to the community. The gala also publicly applauded the accomplishments of eleven Austin women of merit. Linda was nominated in the business/enterprise category and took home the honors.

Linda Ginac is the Chief Executive Officer of a national career development firm. She has grown the Ginac Group through her relentless focus on client satisfaction and superior personalized service. Today, Linda has grown The Ginac Group into a national force in the career development industry and serves thousands of clients. To meet the growing demand for the company’s career development services, Linda established the Certified Career Practitioner Institute (www.careerpractitioner.com) to train and certify professionals to become career coaches. Aside from the company’s growth and success, Linda supports the community at many levels. She is the Chairman of the 15th annual Cattle Barron’s Ball benefiting the American Cancer Society, on the Board of Toast of the Town benefiting St. David’s Hospital Foundation, and has served in volunteer and executive leadership roles for LifeWorks, Young’s Women Alliance, and the National Career Development Association.

“YWCA’s Austin Ten Most Phenomenal Women represent the inspiring roles that women throughout Central Texas are able to achieve,” said Linda Ginac. “I am honored to be recognized as a winner from such an empowering organization.”
